SPECIFICATIONS:-

Recovery Taps / Fishing Tools (NX, NW, NQ, BQ, BX)

(Applies to all Male/Female, Left-Hand (L/H), and Right-Hand (R/H) Recovery Taps)

1. Raw Material & Forging

- Material: All recovery taps must be manufactured from premium, high-strength forged alloy steel (such as SAE 4140, SAE 8620, or EN-24). Standard mild steel or unalloyed carbon steel is strictly prohibited and will result in the immediate rejection of the entire batch.
- Machining: The catching threads (wickers) and longitudinal flutes must be precision CNC-machined. The flutes must be deep and smooth enough to allow steel cuttings (swarf) to easily flush out while the tap cuts into the stuck pipe.

2. Differential Heat Treatment

- Surface Hardness (The Wickers): The outer catching threads must be specifically case-hardened/carburized to a very high hardness of 55 to 60 HRC to ensure the tap is significantly harder than the stuck drill rod/casing it is trying to bite into.
- Core Toughness: While the exterior is hard, the core of the tap must remain tempered and ductile (approx. 30 to 35 HRC) to absorb extreme shock and torsional twisting without snapping during heavy fishing operations.

3. Threading and Directional Standards

- L/H and R/H Precision: Left-Hand (L/H) and Right-Hand (R/H) threads must be flawlessly machined and permanently stamped/engraved on the body of the tool.
- Connection Threads: The standard NW/BW box or pin connection threads must strictly conform to DCDMA standards to ensure a perfect fit with the rescue drill string.

Specialized Tube & Rod Wrenches (Parmelee Type & Friction Tongs) (Applies to Parmelee Type Wrenches, Adjustable Tongs, and NQ Inner Tube Wrenches)

1. Friction Grip Design (Parmelee Equivalent)

- Non-Crushing Grip: Wrenches intended for NQ Inner Tubes and WL Rods must be of the friction-grip design (Parmelee type or equivalent). They must grip the tube uniformly around its entire 360-degree circumference.
- No Serrated Jaws: Tools featuring aggressive serrated teeth or pipe-wrench-style jaws that gouge, score, or crush the thin-walled Cold Drawn Seamless (CDS) inner tubes will be strictly rejected.

2. Material Specifications

- Girths and Handles: The handle, girths (links), and pins must be drop-forged from high-tensile alloy steel. Cast iron components are unacceptable for these specialized tools.
- Pin Hardness: The interlocking pins holding the girth segments together must be heat-treated and shear-resistant to withstand heavy breakout torque.

3. Adjustable Tongs (NW to BW)

- Must be heavy-duty, drop-forged steel construction. If the tong utilizes jaw inserts (dies) for gripping thicker-walled rods, the dies must be replaceable, precision-milled, and induction-hardened to 55-60 HRC.

Mandatory Inspection and Quality Assurance

1. Metallurgical and Hardness Testing "During the Inspection, the inspecting authority reserves the right to conduct random hardness testing on the Recovery Taps. If the outer wickers fail to meet the required 55-60 HRC hardness, or if the tap exhibits brittle characteristics, the entire lot of fishing tools will be rejected."

2. Physical Fitment Test "The supplier must demonstrate the fitment of the specialized Parmelee/Inner Tube wrenches on standard NQ/BQ inner tubes during inspection. Any wrench that causes visible deformation, ovality, or deep surface scoring on the tube under normal breakout torque will be rejected."

3. Material Test Certificates (MTC) "Batch-wise Material Test Certificates (MTC) from an NABL-accredited laboratory or government-recognized laboratory confirming the alloy composition and heat treatment of the Recovery Taps must be submitted at the time of delivery."
